The Chamber refused an adjournorder that the representatives of the The P. & O. steamer Brindisi left London | colonies might prepare their case, and insisted upon the measure in spite of all reason. A deputy from Martinique declarthe colonies a radical revolution. It would involve not only an abandonment of the existing colonial policy, but would necessitate an entire change of the policy upon which the colonies regulated their interior affairs. The different productions, the difmore than a year ago, abandoned the prac- ferent manners, the different needs of the traordinary measure, and it is almost amusing to see such a crushing blow dealt been at such great pains to establish and extend them. The French seem to regard upon hers during the last century, as mere plantations established for the benefit of the through England's experience that the traders of the home country can be benefited only by a policy that allows free development to its colonies. The Nation.

THE French have evidently had a thorough inoculation with protectionism; and are all the while breaking out with it in unexpected places. The law for the regulation of JAMES Reynolds and James Cartin, the the practice of medicine which lately persed the Chamber is so purely a domestle concern that one would acardely look for a blow at the foreign devil in it-but there it is. Some of its provisions of purely French application are open to objection, as, for example, its abulition of health officers and its imposition of a fine of from 100 to 1.000 france upon a priest or sister of charity who should venture to prescribe remedies of any kind to the sick. Both the clauses aim, of course, to their dream. They were fined $3 each by give a monopoly to regular physicians as against unlicensed practitioners. as does also the particularly absurd one prohibiting cents each to a ricksha man whose vehicle a pharmacist, even if a graduate in medithey damaged, the alternative being 14 days' cine, from prescribing; but the worst of all is that forbidding a foreign doctor to practise in France, even temporarily, without obtaining a degree from a mative school. It would seem that the suicidal effect of vouring to bolster up the big job in connect such a law would be at once apparent in view of the great numbers of foreign invalids who, with their own physicians, seek station at Kennedy Town, basing its argu- the health resorts in the south of France ments on the fact that a police station every year. The Board if it were to be responsible for the carrying out of these operations ought to have an officer to apperintend them who would be directly responsible to the Board. Mr Francis was of opinion that the Board could not make general regulations to apply to particular cases and that the Colonial Burgeon, on whose advice permission to exhume was given, was the proper person to say under what conditions and with what precautions permission in each particular case should be given.

o Mr. Francis moved that the Colonial Secretary be informed that the Board could not lay down general rules applicable to each case and that the Colonial decides as to allowing Surgeon who the exhumations is the proper person to decide as to the conditions on which they may be allowed.

Mr Horspool seconded and the motion was carried.
